I am Sandra. I am a designer, enthusiast, marketer and adventurer. I am a restless soul often found deeply immersed in a project or working on a new idea. I like to do a lot of things, but one of my main passions is design. I have education in design, communication and management, and I have worked within a few different constellations and situations within these areas. Through courses, interests, involvement, and work experience I have acquired intercultural competence, an understanding for communication in different markets, long-term and strategic thinking, a great sense of responsibility, as well as confidence in the work I do.
